FOUR HURT IN A CANE RUSH

FOUND LYING UNCONSCIOUS AT THE BOTTOM OF THE HEAP.

A DOCTOR AND TIEMAN'S CLASSMATES WORK OVER HIM FOR AN HOUR-THE COLUMBIA FRESHMEN WILL CARRY CANES ON THE CAMPUS THIS YEAR.

One hundred and twenty sophemores and fresh men in the School of Mines of Columbia University came together yesterday morning in the annual came rush between the classes at Columbia Oval. Williamsbridge, with such force that, when time was called, two minutes before the regular time had expired, four of the participants were found under the heap unconscious. They were Chao and Riley, '99, and Tieman and Schroeder, '90. It was evident from the moment that the train carrying the men left the Grand Central Station that the rush would be much more flerce than the one ba-tween the art school's students, held last Thursday. Fach class was persistent in giving its slogans and hooting down the other class. When the boys reached the grounds they hurriedly dressed and showed their anxiety for the fray. Beatty was chosen referee and Fearing and Longacre were the

At 11:45, when Beatty gave the word, the sopho At 11:45, when Beatty gave the word, the sophomores rushed at the freshmen, who held the cane with such determination that it was evident that some one would be hurt. Although the rush was to last nine minutes, fully five minutes were lacking when groans and yells could be heard coming from the bottom of the group. The ring was immediately formed and the '39 men pulled off all but those who had a hand on the cane. When the word was given had a hand on the cane. When the word was given that the holders should arise and be counted, all got up but Chao, Tieman, Schroeder and Riley. The last two named were not seriously hurt Tieman, however, was moaning and groaning, and, Tieman, however, was moaning and groaning, and, despite the work of his classmates, he remained unconscious. Dr. Van Fliet, of Williamsbridge, was called, and after an hour's hard work succeeded in restoring Tieman to consciousness. Schroeder also was unconscious, but recovered more quickly. This injured ones were all taken home. They had been unfortunate enough to fall in such a position that the weight of the hundred or more others bore down upon their necks, partially strangling them and rendering them incapable either of extricating themselves or calling for help.

After the rush there was a fight as to who had won. Each class claimed Meeks as its member, and before Meeks could declare himself a freshman Umpure Fearing had left the field. The decision, which is in favor of the freshmen, will be formally announced to-morrow and the Mines freshmen will sire Fearing had left the fleid. The decirity and is in favor of the freshmen, will be formally announced to-morrow and the Mines freshmen will smoke pipes and carry canes on the campus during the coming year, an honor not held since the 'St class won the rush in '33.

The '96 men who had hold of the cane at the end of seven minutes were Lefterts, H. A. Brown. Nelson, Erdel, Moran, Dewille, Underfull, Rogers, Weston, Campbell, Weinbach, Williams, Grann, Cassard, Riker and Merks. The '99 men were Maddan, Waterman, Von Baur, Hudson, Griffith, Irving, Wenskin, Darrach, Smith, Biglow, Bell, Baumann, Dietrich, Oddie and Young.

THE GREAT SALE OF CITY BONDS.

CONTROLLER FITCH POINTS OUT WHY THE NEW SECURITIES ARE A DE-SIRABLE INVESTMENT.

NEW SECURITIES ARE A DESIRABLE INVESTMENT.

Controller Fitch made a statement yesterday regarding the great sale of city bonds of November 2, in part as fellows:

The sale of city bonds which I am now advertising is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the history of the city. Of the sign is the largest in the largest in the largest which mature on December 1, 1896. The remainder represent amounts needed for various important represent amounts needed for various important items of municipal expenditure. Such as new sahalt pavements, acquiring land for the Jerome Park Reservoir, building new bridges, purchasing Park Reservoir, building new bridges, purchasing water-front property for dock purposes, and constructing and equipping new school buildings.

I see no reason why this hend sale should not be very successful. The date is fixed for November 9, about a week after election, when business conditions will have had time to become fairly well settled. No matter what the result of the election may be, the intrinsic value of these bonds cannot be affected; for they are payable, principal and interest, in gold coin of the United States of America, of the present standard of weight and fineness. Moreover, they are, unlike most of the recent issues of city bonds, exempt from taxation by the city and county of New-York.

I hope the public will appreciate the opportunities which has no superior all the world over. Government bonds will not compare with them for absolute security; because, in the first place, Government bonds are merely currency obligations, not specifically made payable in gold; and, secondition which has no obligated and security payable in gold, but they are secured by assets of hundreds of milli assured that their security resist upon a foundation which cannot be shaken by the disposition of their debtor, or the prevalence of new or unsound theories of finance.

On October 1, 1896, the securities and cash held by the Sinking Fund amounted to 176,716,954 is by the Sinking Fund amounted to 176,716,954 is which deducted from the total funded debt of 1890,878,254, leaves as the net debt of the city 114,181,299 & The bonds outstanding, which are prior 181,299 & The bonds outstanding, which are prior 161,299 & The bonds outstanding, which are prior thereon the Sinking Fund, and the Constitution of the State of New-York that there examinate to redeem the same at their maturity. These amounts aggregate 14,691,218 sq. as appears in the demartmental estimate of the Finance Denartment for the year 1897. The annual revenues of the Sinking Fund, however, are about 38,003,000, or nearly double what the law fixes as the Sinking Fund's atandard of efficiency. It will be seen, therefore, that New-York City bonds are practically impregnable in their security. Those which are now offered for sale bear 125 per cent interest, a rate nearly as high as can be realized on many bonds of railroad corporations listed on the Stock Exchange.

a rate nearly as high actions listed on the Stock Exchange.

It should be borne in mind that in 1889 the city sold at a premium millions of dollars of bonds bearing 2½ per cent interest, and they were not gold bonds, either. If the money market should revert to the conditions of that year, these 3½ per cent bonds, in order to sell on a 2½ per cent basis, would have to be quoted at over 117. With the exception of a few bonds sold last summer, no taxeremut bonds bearing so high a rate of interest as 3½ per cent have been sold since February 25, 1885.

INTERESTED IN THE ROUTE.

MR. STEINWAY'S REASONS FOR FAVORING ELECTRICITY.

HE SAYS IT COULD BE USED IN THE UNDER-GROUND ROAD BOTH AS A MOTIVE AND

sion to push the underground retiread project in Elm-st. vigorously continued yesterday route in Elm-st., Lafayette Place, Forty-second-st. and Broadway from that point up and through the Boulevard. The confirmation of William Steinway's idea by John D. Crimmins, that the structure could be built within a year from the time of its beginning by attacking the work from the surface, as is being done in Boston by the Sub-way Company, under the direction of the Boston Rapid Transit Commission, has opened the eyes of many to the actualities of the situation. In Boston the trench is being iined with white enamelied brick, so that the gloominess of the traditional tunnel, with the brick brilliantly illuminated by electricity, is to be dispelled.

As to the question of electricity or compressed air for the motive power of the underground engines. Mr. Steinway said yesterday: "Other things being Electricity could be used for lighting purposes as would suffice, while two would be necessary if the would sumee, while two would be necessary if the motive power were to be compressed air. I have studied both motive powers a good deal. Com-pressed air as a motive power is worked under such a terrific pressure that the least disarrangement of the gearing would decrease the power at once, Besides, it is necessary to stop the car at intervals to charge it, and this will take a minute and a half at about every mile. There are, in short, objections to compressed air which make its utility for the underground road extremely doubtful. I tried it thoroughly on the line at Steinway, Long Island.

"Leading property-owners along the tine are approving the route generally, so far as it appears now. Those in Elm-st., Larayette Place, Fourthave, and Forty-second-st. will all be greatly benefited by this underground line, while its construction on the Elm-st. route will forever set at rest any scheme for an underground or elevated railread in Broadway. An all-Broadway route might be better for the shopping district, but as that has be better for the next best thing is the Eim-st. route.

And after all, that route will bring shoppers where they can reach the great shopping centres easily by the cable road down from Forty-second-st. or up from Union Square." Henry B. Ely, the real estate representative of John Jacob Astor, said: "Mr. Astor is heartily in favor of the Eim-st. route. It will be of great benefit to his property not merely along the proposed route, but on a broader basis throughout the whole route, but on a broader basis upon the city, a benefit which will be felt generally along Broadway from Forty-second-st. upward. We have property at the southeast and northeast corners of Broadway and Forty-second-st. ward. We have property at the southeast and northeast corners of Broadway and Ferty-secondst. the former the St. Cloud Hotel, and also on Long Acre Square, at the front between Forty-third and Ferty-fourth sis, and on the north side of Forty-thirdst, and the south side of Forty-fourthest, electricity, and the south side of Forty-fourthest, electronic was suggested, will be of exceedingly great importance in stimulating real estate interests above Forty-second-st. The adoption of the Elm-st. route will also forever settle the question of any inroad of an elevated or underground road on lower Broadway. I do not see where any opposition of importance to the Elm-st. route can come in. That route will develop Forty-second-st, between the Grand Central Station and Broadway wonderfully."

Louis Sherry, whose new house is being creeted at the southwest corner of Broadway and Fifthave, said: "This is almost too good to be true. It means that that part of the city centring in Fifthave, as Forty-second so Forty-fourth st. is to be placed in close touch with Brockiyn and towns on the New-York Central Railroad all along the Hudson. It will push the centre of the city uptown at once to Forty-second-st."

Mr. Steinway said that one of the large stations of the route would be at Fifth-ave, and Forty-second-st.

THE UNIVERSITY SETTLEMENT.

AN EARNEST APPEAL FROM TWO PROMINENT CITIZENS FOR FUNDS TO CARRY

Richard Watson Gilder and M. G. Van Rensselaer have sent to the newspapers a letter, stating that while they are not concerned in the management of the University Settlement at No. 25 Delencey-st. and have not been asked to write a public appeal in its behalf, they have learned that it is seriously crippied owing to lack of funds. They declare that instead of being obliged to reduce its force, it crippied owing to lack of funds. They declare that instead of being obliged to reduce its force, it should be in a position to increase it. They make the following statements about the University Settlement, known to the people in its district as the Neighborhood Guild House:

The Neighborhood Guild House stands in the Tenth Ward, in the most thickly populated spot in all the civilized world, crowded by people of many different nationalities. The assistance it gives the public schools in Aftericanizing this population cannot be overestimated. Its social, political and sanitary efforts are extended and efficacious. Its head worker is known and respected throughout the East Side, and has been a school trustee, an arbitrator in labor troubles, and a local political power for good, as well as the friend and counselior of a multitude of individuals. The Guild House itself is frequented by more than 5,00 crilledren and young people. It maintains a large kindergarten, and classes of many kinds, including the dancing classes, which are priceiess engines for the improvement of manners and minor moralities. It manages a very large penny provident bank. It contains a reading-room and a lending library, where the librarian intelligently guides the tastes of her clients, and gives them help in their school work. Its large room is constantly lent for the amateur entertainments which the children get up among themselves; and all its rooms are in daily use, afternoon and evening, by many of those clubs and debating societies which tif the saloon be excepted) affords the East Sider, old or young, his or her only opportunity for social intercourse.

Money to keep at least the present thrice-essential employes in their places is very sorely needed by the thousands of industrious and intellectually ambitious young folk whom they have counselled and assisted for years. And it is needed now—before November 1—not "after election."

The site, a block of ground in the Boulevard, near Columbia, was purchased by Barnard for pired on May 19, 1896, and an earnest effort was made by the trustees to comply with the exact terms of the gift, so that it might not lapse. About $20,000 of this mortgage was raised on the last day of the four years.

In the course of these struggles to pay for this site a record building was pledged by Mrs. A. A. Anderson, of New-York, to be known as Milbank Hail, and in the summer of 1995, Lamb & Rich, the architects, prepared plans for these two buildings.

After Miss Smith had declared the stone "well and truly laid," President Seth Low delivered a brief address. On behalf of Columbia University, he extended congratulations to the friends, faculty and students of Barnard, and to the donors of the two halls. Reynolds, accompanied by John Doyle, of No. North Oxford-st., entered the hotel shortly before o'clock, and had several drinks. Seated at a table arose over politics, and one of the men struck Reynolds. Stone ordered all the men out, and Reynolds was struck again outside the Washington-st. en was struck again outside the Washington-st. en-trance. He drew a revolver and fired one shot without effect. He then rushed back into the bar-room and fired again, striking Myers in the middle joint of the second finger of the right hand. He then ran into the office, on the Concord-st side, and fired at Stone, the builet taking effect in the right arm, above the elbow. He dashed through the Con-cord-st, door and around into Washington-st., and in front of the bar entrance placed the muzzle of the pistol between his eyes and pulled the trigger. Still holding the smoking pistol, he was rushing toward Frank Colgan, a conductor on the Nassau road, who had been in the saloon at the first firing.

The man was carried into the barroom, and an ambutance was called. Dr. McGoldrick, of the Brooklyn Hospital, responded and stanched the flow of bloed, and then turned his attention to the other two wounded men. He was unable to find the builet in Stone's arm, but extracted the one from Myers's finger.

Beynolds was soon removed to the Brooklyn Hospital, where the builet was found.

John Doyle and Frank Colgan were taken to the First Precinct station-house, where they made their statements to the police.

Later in the evening it was asserted by those who had seen the affair that Reynolds did not shoot himself deliberately, but that the revolver was discharged accidentally while the motorman was struggling with him to take the weapon away.
